

"An aborigine familiarly known as Dick Manifold, who had been suffering from a severe attack of disease of the lungs for some time previous, expired on Saturday last, near Camperdown, and at the request of one of his tribe a short service was pronounced over his remains at the Camperdown Cemetery by the Rev John Hutchinson, incumbent of St. Paul's there, who readily acceded to the request for example's sake, and attended the funeral for that purpose.