

A skull and other bones, supposed to be those of an aboriginal, were found on Saturday last, on Mr Manifold's run, about 12 miles from Camperdown, by a man named Stephen Ryan, while he was preparing the foundation of a stone wall. The discovery was reported to Constable Sinnott, and the remains were removed to the Camperdown Police Station. The bones had probably been in the ground for some years, as no vestige of flesh or clothing was found with them. An enquiry will of course be unnecessary.
